Tablet vs. Paper: how to take notes sustainably

We, a team of three university students studying Computer Science/Data Science, worked on a project analysing public data to answer the question: Which note-taking technique is more sustainable: using the tablet or old-fashioned paper? Below you can see our main results to allow you to make a sustainable choice wherever you are in the world with the focus on the criteria of your choice:

The development of the share of renewable energy and recyclable paper in Finland

World map showing the share of renewable energy in 2020

If you are interested, the underlying data sources as well as the entire work done on the data can be found in the repository at development material.